

Vision isn't just about site it's about having the ability to see beyond the here and now

Tim Reddish was involved in the leisure industry for over 35 years. He competed at an International level for thirteen years as a blind athlete in the pool, at three Paralympic, three World Championships and five European Championships amassing a total of twenty-two gold, eleven silver and ten bronze medals. He successfully converted his talents and experience in the pool to head up the British Disability Swim Squad. Using his expertise he set up a performance pathway and sports science programme mentoring a small team of staff to become a strong professional team way ahead of the other nations, that was the envy of the rest of the World and led the team as "Performance Director" to...
