

"Without creative disruption there's no advancement!"

Innovative and inspiring: Innovator Stefan Jenzowsky is an expert on new, trend-setting business models, products, start-ups and disruption. Even when he started his career in management, he already drew his inspiration directly from the Silicon Valley, successfully supported the development of several start-up companies and consequently is a hands-on guy through and through. His many years of being an assistant professor at various universities also make him an experienced and fascinating speaker. Thanks to the numerous projects, he has initiated in the course of his professional career, he can rely on a wealth of experience with regard to product developments, market launches and disruptive innovations in various industries. In his capacity as Managing Director of 2b AHEAD Ventures, he builds up new start-ups and helps them to succeed.
